

Dr. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER

Pure—Wholesome—Reliable—
Indispensable

Its fame is world-wide. Its superiority unquestioned. Its use is a protection against alum food. In buying baking powder examine the label carefully and be sure the powder is made from cream of tartar. Other kinds do not make the food healthful.

Construction of Earth Roads

Washington, D. C., March 11.—As soils differ for agricultural purposes so they differ for roads, says the roads expert of the Department of Agriculture. Clay or soils of fine texture usually make poor roads, especially if they contain much vegetal matter. The coarser soils, however, which contain some sand or gravel, will often make very satisfactory roads for light traffic provided they are kept in proper repair.

If the road is composed of fine clay or soil it will sometimes pay to reinforce it with top soil from an adjacent field, which has sand or gravel mixed with it. This method, called the topsoil method, is now in successful use in Virginia, North Carolina and Georgia, and probably other states.

The earth road can best be crowned and ditched with a road machine and not with picks and shovels, scops and plows. One road machine with a suitable power, and operator, will do the work of many men with picks and shovels, and do it better.

The road machine should be used when the soil is damp, so as to make the soil hold when it dries out. If it is worked dry, it takes more power to draw the machine, and besides dry earth and dust retain moisture and quickly rot after rains. The use of cloths, suds, weeds or vegetable matter in building earth roads should be avoided because they also retain moisture.

It is a great mistake to put the working of the earth off until August or September. The surface is then baked dry and hard. It is not only difficult to work but it is unsatisfactory as long as the dry weather lasts and then torn to mind as soon as the rains begin. By using the road machine in the spring of the year while the soil is soft and damp, the surface is more easily shaped and soon packs down into a dry hard crust which is less liable to become dusty in summer or muddy in winter.

Storm water should be disposed of quickly before it has time to penetrate deeply into the surface. This can be done by giving the road a crown or slope from the center to the sides. For an earth road which is 24 feet wide the center should be not less than six inches nor more than 12 inches higher than the outer edges of the shoulders. A narrow road which is too high in the middle will become rutted almost as quickly as one which is too flat for the reason that on the narrow road all the traffic is forced to use only a narrow strip.

Shoulders are often formed on both sides of the road which prevent storm water from flowing into side ditches, retaining it in the ruts and softening the roadway. These ruts and shoulders can be entirely eliminated with the road machine or split log drag.

Ordinarily, the only ditches needed are those made with the road machine, which are wide and shallow. Deep, narrow ditches wash rapidly, especially on steep slopes, which is another good reason for decreasing the steepness of the grades. It is difficult to maintain an earth road on any kind of road for that matter on a steep grade.

The width of the earth road will depend on the traffic. At a rule, 25 or 30 feet from ditch to ditch is sufficient, if the road is properly crowned. A road that is narrower than 25 feet is difficult to maintain for the above stated reason that on narrow roads the teams are more apt to track than on a wider road causing it to rut if subjected to heavy hauling.

The road should not be loosened, dug or plowed up any more than is absolutely necessary. The road should be gradually raised, not lowered, hardened, not softened.

On flat lands, where water moves slowly, seed material should be taken from the lower ditch and culverts supplied where waterways occur. A shallow ditch on the upper side makes it possible to give culverts a good fall. Two or more small ditches instead of one large one of

POLITICAL POT IS SIZZLING IN ARIZONA

State Politics Monopolizing Public Attention as Time Draws Near for Primary Candidacy

REPUBLICANS REMAIN HOPELESSLY DIVIDED

Phoenix, March 8.—While the campaign that preceded the city primaries was in progress it was so warmly contested as to distract attention from state politics, overshadowing the latter completely in state house circles and among visitors from other sections of the state who were only indirectly interested in the municipal election from the possible hearing it would have upon conditions that may arise later in the state campaign.

But since the primaries, the municipal campaign has quieted down, at least for the time being, and there is more time and inclination to talk state politics. True, George U. Young and Judge Lewis are making thorough canvases in their separate behalfs and eight candidates for the commission are likewise working, yet the interest is manifestly not so keen as it was.

The Governorship.

From the start interest in state affairs has centered around the governorship more than any other office.

The anti-Hunt faction themselves admit the mistake that was made in the call of the state committee and regret the attack of Worsely on the state university considering that it has eliminated him from the race.

There is still a movement on foot, if possible, obtain the consent of Judge Alfred Franklin to contest with Hunt in the primaries as he is admittedly the strongest man that could be secured.

In the several months that will elapse before the primaries many changes of plans may arise.
